KEY OPINION QUESTION #1

Thinking about the different groups within the broader Democratic and Republican coalitions, which do you personally feel closest to?

The MAGA movement	8%
The traditional conservative wing of the Republican Party	13%
The moderate or centrist wing of the Republican Party	11%
The moderate or centrist wing of the Democratic Party	19%
The liberal wing of the Democratic Party	14%
The progressive left	5%
None of these	30%

Democratic-side factions total 38%, Republican-side factions total 32%, and 30% of respondents feel close to none of them.

INSIGHTS

"None of these" beats every faction. At 30%, women who feel close to no group in either coalition outnumber the largest named faction (moderate Democrats, 19%) by 11 points. Politically homeless is the single biggest category of women in this sample.

The center is larger than the poles on both sides. The moderate wings on each side (19% on the Democratic side, 11% on the Republican side), are larger than the ideological edges which combined draw just 13% total (MAGA 8%, the progressive left 5%).
